Many Women who are Splendid Cooks

dread having to prepare an elaborate dinner because they are not sufficiently strong to stand over an intensely hot coal range. This is especially true in summer. Every woman takes pride in the table she sets, but often it is done at tremendous cost to her own vitality through the weakening effect of cooking on a coal range in a hot kitchen.

It is no longer necessary to wear yourself out preparing a fine dinner. Even in the heat of summer you can cook a large dinner without being worn out.

Caution: Be sure you get this stove—see that the nameplate reads "New Perfection."

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

Without outside heat, no smell, no smoke. It will cook the biggest dinner without heating the kitchen or the cook. It is immediately lighted and immediately extinguished. It can be changed from a slow to a quick fire by turning a handle. There's no waiting fifteen or twenty minutes till the fire gets going. Apply a light and it's ready. By simply turning the wick up or down you get a slow or an intense heat on the bottom of the pot, pan, kettle or oven, and nowhere else. It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot, drop shelves for coffee, teapot or saucepan, and even a rack for towels. It saves time, worry, health and temper. It does all a woman needs and more than she expects. Made with 1, 2, and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner sizes can be had with or without Cabinet.

THE LAND OF PUZZLEDOM.

No. 959—Riddle. We are known and we're valued in all sorts of lands. For we do a great work. With our tireless hands. We are large, we are small. We are young, we are old. Whatever you ask us is readily told. Indeed, it is a fact. At all times, in all cases, You can tell what we know By a look at our faces.

No. 960—Letter Enigma. My first is in food, but not in eat; My second is in carrot, but not in beet; My third is in ire, but not in wrath; My fourth is in plaster, but not in lath; My fifth is in nose, but not in ear; My sixth is in danger, but not in fear; My whole is the name of one we all love, And you'll know who it is when you solve the above.

No. 961—Curtainings. 1. Curtail a shelter formed of cloth and leave a number. 2. Curtail a delicate and leave a toilet necessity. 3. Doubly curtail a medicine prescribed for weak persons and leave a weight. 4. Doubly curtail a large strong rope used on ships and leave a vehicle.

No. 962—Numerical Enigma. I am composed of forty-eight letters and form a line in a poem by Tennyson called "New Year's Eve." My 38, 13, 15, 7, 32, 42 is a poem consisting of fourteen lines. My 45, 21, 48, 19 is an excuse. My 1, 23, 38, 22, 30, 44 is the national flower of a certain country. My 14, 25, 5, 46, 30 is a grain widely cultivated. My 35, 41 is a preposition. My 2, 15, 26, 33, 24, 10 is a young cow. My 3, 47, 22, 31, 34, 10, 23, 12, 38 holds captive.

No. 963—Progressive Puzzle. As Asia a first gentleman; A cascade and an English river; A verb, produced as all began; The month when congress passed forever The continent out of life; The day when congress armed for strife, Thus opening its first armed war; The year when congress passed an act To hold no intercourse in fact With France or Britain near or far. Read this in order and see A fact and date of history.

No. 964—Pictured Word. Resident of a foreign city.

No. 965—Charades. My first's a place for sweet repose. How blest it is the weary knows. My next's a feast one gives his friend. With dainties sweet they joy to lend. My whole, my second, too, may be A pretty thing one likes to see.

Beat of companions my first is found. Go where you will the curth answer. To my second no one can praise can fail. There's no one can say he likes it all. Too much of my first, and my whole A useless man you will often see.

My first the poor porter regrets, not the boy. My second expresses a mild kind of joy. My whole as collector was surely his. For the old adage says those who dance must him pay.

No. 966—Decapitation. I am nothing but a little word Of which you all have often heard. I'm what the boys and girls should be. But not much like the rolling sea. Behind me, I've four legs or three. Or rows of figures I shall be. Behind again, and I can do Most anything you want me to.

No. 967—Anagram. Name of a distinguished literary woman. "She wrote. A tribe cheer."

No. 968—Word Square. 1. Capable. 2. A vegetable. 3. To debar. 4. Brings to a conclusion.—St. Nicholas.

How I Won

Capturing a Girl by Means of a Common Interest.

By LAWRENCE FOSTER.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

One winter when congress was in session I was invited to the national capital to spend a week with my friend Jim Treusdall in company with others, forming a very pleasant house party. Jim had not been long married, and I was a bachelor. I have always thought that his wife got on the affair especially for my benefit and that of Miss Mildred Sweet, Mrs. Jim desiring to make a match between her and me. I was not averse, so far as I was concerned, for I had not been acquainted with Miss Sweet twenty minutes before I remarked to myself, "That's the girl I am looking for." I have a theory that a good way to win a girl is to conjure up something which you and she may have in common. I was not alone in this. One evening at dinner Mrs. Jim showed plainly that something had happened. She said nothing to any of the guests and when they spoke to her she replied in monosyllables. Treusdall labored hard to keep a certain amount of life in the party, but was not successful. After dinner Jim took me up to a little den he used to hide away. He told me that he was the matter. His wife had lost a diamond as big as a hickory nut. It had been handed down to her for five generations and had been turned over to her on her wedding day. She had taken it out of its receptacle for the purpose of discovering the thief and to take Miss Sweet into the business with her. By interesting her in the case I hoped eventually to turn that interest from the gem to myself. I asked Jim a good many questions, but only elicited the information that every servant in the house during his wife's absence from her room was downstairs and quite busy, most of them with the preparations for the dinner. The next guests were all in the billiard room. Two of the women guests were dressing in their rooms for dinner and after that the function at the White House. A third, a widow, Mrs. Jernegan, with a little daughter, five years old, was assisting her nurse to put the child to bed. Mrs. Jernegan was my first choice for the thief. Women who are not dressed don't run about in another person's house, and Mrs. Jernegan was the only person on the floor at the time the stone was lost. I went to the White House reception with Miss Sweet and during the evening told her about the loss and began to excite her curiosity as to who could have been the thief. "It would be a nice thing," I said, "if you and I, working together, could recover the stone and turn it back to the rightful owner."

"Indeed it would," she said, "but how can we do that?" "I don't know that we can, but we can try."

I confided to her that I suspected Mrs. Jernegan. She did not especially fancy the widow, but could hardly bring herself to feel that she was the thief. I told Miss Sweet that she, being a woman, could keep an eye on the suspect better than I, and she agreed to do so.

I had a little scheme up my sleeve to compel Mrs. Jernegan to show her colors if she were guilty. Of course, I could not tell her of my plan. I told her that I was not proving her guilty of getting back the stone, but that it would serve for a clue. I invited a party, including Mrs. Jernegan, to visit the capital. Miss Sweet was, of course, with us. After showing the party through the building I took them into the dome. There is a whispering gallery in this dome in which a voice speaking on one side can be heard at the other. Leaving the widow on one side of the dome, I took Miss Sweet and the rest of the party to the gallery. I told them that I suspected Mrs. Jernegan, and that I was going to test her. I told them that I was going to tell her that I suspected her, and that I was going to test her. I told them that I was going to tell her that I suspected her, and that I was going to test her.

Washing White Gloves.

When washing silk or Lisle-thread gloves, I use a nail brush for the soiled finger tips. I use a strong lather of warm water and white unscented soap. Put the gloves on the hands, and scrub the finger-tips with the nail brush. Then wash the gloves all over with the hands. Rinse in two waters; use a few drops of bluing in the last water. Dry in the sun, either on the hands or on a press. New press gloves, if they seem stiff, pull them gently into shape. Gloves treated in this fashion will look like new.

A Simple Gimp.

A gimp with no sleeves can be made very simply. Fit the lace yoke and sew to the bottom edge, both back and front, a shaped piece of lawn. At the top it should reach to the armholes. Make it nine inches in length, and narrowed to four inches across the bottom. Hem the edges, open it, and fasten up the back with books and eyes. Sew two tapes to the bottom of the back. Make two vertical buttonholes near the bottom of the front piece of lawn. Bring the tapes to the front, pass them through the buttonholes, and fasten with a book and eye. The tape should be rather tight in order to keep the yoke in place. A wrinkled or loosely fitting lace gimp is an abomination.

When making preparations for traveling, I always put in some convenient place a bunch of colored tags. Green is conspicuous color. With a green tag on each end of a trunk, one's luggage is easily identified, even in the usual confusion of baggage rooms. A few of the linen suits are handsomely braided and hand-embroidered. The best of these are in the hands of the plain tailored effects.
